

KILLICK STONE NECKLACE

Early Maine Coast Anchor
Symbol of Hope and Constancy

Killick: the most ancient of anchors, a simple oval stone held fast by pieces of wood, typically used to secure a small to medium-size boat. Our Killick stones are surrounded in 14K yellow gold. Comes with an 18" wheat chain. Shown actual size. Pure. Nature with minimal tinkering. It's really quite lovely.

Sailor's Valentine

A love token for your sweetheart

Sailors' valentines are a window into sentiment and love from the high seas of the 18th and 19th centuries. It was during this period that men returned from sea with their treasures from distant ports. One of the most popular gifts of love and devotion from this era were sailors' valentines, eight-sided mahogany boxes filled with elaborate patterns made from tiny sea shells... love tokens for their sweethearts at home.

In the spirit of this centuries-old custom we have created for modern man, miniature sailors' valentines to give to your sweetheart in your choice of silver, gold, or a blend of both.

The Blueberry Pocket

Eureka Blue Tourmaline

From America's Greatest Gem Mountain

August 7, 2010

Blueberries ripen later on Plumbago Mountain because of its higher elevation and cooler temperatures. This picture was taken on the morning of the 7th near the Eureka Blue mine site. Later the same day three large plump blue crystals of over 80 carats each and one superlative 130-carat tourmaline crystal were released after 300 million years of total darkness into the August sun.

On August 26 the first fifteen cut and polished gems from the new Eureka Blueberry pocket went on display in our store. With every find and the completion of a new batch of cut gems excitement ripples through our store. We immediately began making rings and necklaces from these new gems.

No photograph or words can ever begin to describe the beauty of light and life that these gems possess... you must come to see for yourself... A little road trip perhaps...How could anyone resist?

Savannah

A Southern Romance

Savannah immediately impresses with a halo of diamond light reminiscent of the city's famous fountains. Shimmering from the center, diamonds cascade down the band in a stream of playful brilliance.

Savannah, the engagement ring, makes the transition from jeans to dress with ease. It is graceful yet bold, it is elegance born from a romantic dream - a shower of pure white diamond light.

Savannah's design tastefully enhances the visual look of the center diamond. Available with 1/2 to 1 1/2 carat center.
